SIA Voted Number 1

Dr Cheong Choong Kong, SIA group deputy chairman, receiving the award from William Adamopoulos, managing director, Asian Wall Street Journal

In a recent traveler survey conducted by the Asian Wall Street Journal, Singapore Airlines was voted the top airline.

In a survey conducted by the independent Beta Research Corporation 362 readers of the Journal gave SIA first place in 4 out of the 5 categories.

Cathay Pacific and United Airlines were adjudged second and third respectively. The latter took the first spot in the fifth category for the size of the network. 37
