COCO blended an exciting rush of colour to present a cool yet refreshing look that lent a new meaning to the word 'casual'. Splashes of pink, orange, yellow and a multitude of other vibrant colours dominated the free flowing designs where each line and hue imparted a casual vivacious look. To add some contrast to this lively mix of colours, designs created in subtle tones such as white and other light hues exhibited a soothing impression. Stylish and trendy tops and pants with black and white stripes, checkered patterns and quirky designs further enhanced the fun nature of COCO while conveying an air of elegance at the same time.

Speaking on this collaboration, KT Brown said, "This is the first time that I am collaborating with a retail brand and it is very exciting. We see great promise in the COCO brand." Going by the label 'KT for COCO', this is only the first of such collaborations of many that is to come in the future as COCO partners with fashion designers from both home and fashion capitals.
