Suren Rajakarier Was Recognized For His Work Helping To Build ACCA's Brand Within South Asia...

Nilusha Ranasinghe, Head, ACCA, Sri Lanka, said: "Suren Rajakarier has been an influential advocate in helping ACCA advance the profession across Sri Lanka, and assisting us to attract, develop and sustain the next generation of finance professionals. He is the epitome of an ACCA member advocate and consistently contributes to shaping the future of the profession. He is an invaluable asset to the organization and I congratulate him on being chosen as Middle East and South Asia's Advocate of the Year. I would also like to thank him for the contribution he has made to ACCA over the years. Of course, outside the formal awards process there are also many ACCA members who give up their time to give back to our organization, promote the profession and inspire future talent – not only in Sri Lanka, but also in our 179 other markets around the world. I thank them all for their contributions and hope to see many more of our members recognized in future years."

ACCA launched the regional advocacy awards last year to recognize members who go above and beyond in expressing public support for the accountancy profession, embodying ACCA's values.

These advocates are also members who deliver public value, display ethical professional-ism and inspire others to follow in their footsteps.
